Arab Truce Policy Is Under Review

By Raymond H. Anderson CAIRO, Aug. 20 (NYT).-King Hussein of Jordan flew to Cairo today with his top political and military aides for a three-day strategy conference with Egyptian President Gamal Abdel Nasser on forthcoming talks aimed at reaching a settlement of the conflict with Israel. Observers here expected the talks to be crucial in fixing Arab policy in the negotiations to be conducted by Gunnar V. Jarring, the United Netions Mideast envoy. Mr. Nasser and King Hussein, the two principal decision-makers for the Arabs, are expected to co-ordinate views on the framework of an acceptable solution of the Mideast dispute, with particular emphasis on the problem of more than a million Palestinian refugees and on recovering territories cap-

Israell officials denied that this delay was a deliberate attempt to put off the talks. "Since Mr. Jarring knew our views, and agreed at least that the chief delegates should be foreign ministers, there was no urgency about stating our position formally," one Israeli official said.

American diplomats have been quoted as fearing that Israel was deliberately stalling while Jerusalem and Washington studied their respective interpretations of intelligence data following an Israeli charge that Egypt had undertaken new missile deployments in violations of the Aug. 7 ceasefire agreement. U.S. Says Atom Tests Contaminate 250-Square-Mile Area in Nevada

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20 (AP).-About 250 square miles of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission's Nevada test site—an area nearly the size of New York City-are contaminated with plutonium, a radioactive element that can linger for 24,000 years or

In addition, 49 separate areas on the site have been fenced off because the radiation level is too high to permit human access. The extent of the contamination left by 19 years of tests was disclosed in a draft statement the AEC prepared for submission to the Environmental Quality Council.

The plutonium is harmful only if it is inhaled into the lungs or if it gets into the bloodstream through an open wound. The amount scattered by the wind is not dangerous, the ABC says.

Since the nuclear test ban treaty was signed in 1963, all 210 announced explosions at Nevada have been underground and de-

Disastrous Trade Bill

has fermally approved, by a vote of 17 to 7. a trade bill that would impose import quotas on textiles, shoes, oil and, in all probability, a long list of other products. If adopted and signed, this bill would represent a giant step back to protectionism for the United

To avoid a threatened presidential veto. the committee has adopted a few provisions sought by the Nixon administration.

But these do little if anything to improve a disastrous piece of legislation. Indeed, some of the alieged improvements actually create more problems than they solve.

For instance, the bill was modified to give the President qualified authority to end the American Selling Price system, which leads to extraordinarily high tariffs on certain chemicals and other products. But he is instructed to seek more favorable terms than those negotiated during the Kennedy Round of tariff negotiations in exchange for an end to ASP and Congress reserves the right to overrule the President's action by a simple majority vote within 60 days after he takes

The committee hill also proposes to let the President exempt particular countries or products from compulsory quotas, if ha deems these opposed to the national interest. But, to the extent that the President availed himself of this clause, it would constitute a very discriminatory form of bilateralism.

The bill throws a bone toward the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) by

The House Ways and Means Committee putting up a specific appropriation of funds as the United States contribution. Far more significently, however, the bill would put this country in flagrant violation of the GATT rules of international trading and would invite-virtually compel-retaliation.

> The Ways and Means Committee has ignored the recommendations of the President's task force on oil import control for shifting oil importe to a tariff system. On the contrary, it would now freeze oil import quotas as long as there are any restraints at all. Unhappily, the President himself has scuttled the task force report. Not content with shelving it when it was submitted last winter, Mr. Nixon has now let it be known that he has abandoned all thought of shifting away from oil quotas.

That White House retreat raises extra worry about how resolutely the administration will fight on other trade issues. The House hill ignores the President's opposition to mandatory quotas on shoes and other products. It ignores the opposition of the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation to the expensive and wasteful scheme for export subsidies under a so-called Domestic International Sales Corporation (DISC). And it ignores the strong opposition of virtually every reputable independent economist in the country and of representatives of consumer interests.

All in all, this is a thoroughly bad billone that should be rejected by both House and Senate. Should it pass, it overwhelmingly deserves a presidential veto.

Prague Two Years After

Two years after the invasion that ended Czechoslovakia's sovereignty, the Kafkaesque situation in which Czechs and Slovaks aliks now find themselves is grimly summarized in the Prague "joke" that theirs is the most neutral country in the world: It does not even intervene in its own internal

The basic truth of that bitter observation is apparent to anyone who watches the slavish manner in which Czechoslovakia now follows the Moscow line on all issues, plus the thoroughness of the continuing purge of all who gave even moral support to Duhcek's idea of creating a "socialism with a human face."

Two years of military occupation and intense political pressure have orought about -superficially at least-the "normalization" the Kremlin demanded when it sent its own and its satellites' troops across a defenseless state's borders. But it is the normalization that prevails in a graveyard. In the prevailing attitude of cynicism and hopelessness, people have withdrawn into their private worlds, focusing on how they can get the most out of the state and the economy while contributing as little as possible.

In Hungary roughly a decade ago Janos Kadar met a similar situation by reversing history as the amendment that lost the Soviet policy internally and making his country a relatively tolerable and comfortable nation as Communist states go. Kadar realized he could not indefinitely rule his land merely by sitting on Soviet bayonets. One may suspect that Husak-if he keeps his present post as Moscow's gauleiter-would like to try a similar tactic eventually. But will Breznnev be as flexible as Khrushchev was in giving Kadar his head? And even if this strategy is tried later this decade, will it work? Czechoslovakia, after all, had almost a year and a half of relative freedom under Dubcek; while the 1956 "Budapest spring" under Imre Nagy lasted less than two weeks.

Anniversary in Czechoslovakia

Official Prague can await the 21st of August and the second anniversary of the occupation of Czechoslovakia without the fears of last year. , . One can call this development "normalization" as the leadership has continued to do since Husak took power. But a genuine agreement between the government and the governed has not yet occurred. . . The date Aug. 21, 1968, has a place in the consciousness of the people equal to the national catastrophe of the Hussite war, the ruinous hattle of White Mountain in the 30-year war and the German occupation. . .

For the second anniversary, the more heroic times of self-sacrificing students and their protests are past. In their placemore difficult to comhat-passive resistance has appeared, which in the economy, where the important decisions are taken in the long run, causes more trouble than the mors demonstrative resistance.

The Czech incident, like the Hungarian incident, once more told the world that no matter how beautiful the Communists describe their ideals and how perfect are their systems, deeds speak louder than words.

If their political systems were good for the people, why are they opposed hy the majority of people? Why did the hig brothers of the Communist camp have to use tanks and machine guns to force the people to accept the "good systems"?

Russian tanks rolled into Prague just two years ago, crushing the hopes of those who had tried to liberalize the Communist regime in Czechoslovakia as easily as they might have crushed a spring flower.

'No Security in Retreat'

By Spiro T. Agnew

This is the address that Vice-President Agnew made Monday to the Veterans of Foreign Wars convention in Miami Beach.

WOULD like to speek to you today of a rising threat to everything our servicemen have fought to accomplish in Southeast' Asia—a threat embodied in the Hatfield-McGovern amendment. Should this proposed amendment become law, unless America declares war, President Nixon would be forced to end any military aid to Laos and to halt all military operations in South Vietnam-twenty weeks from today. Every American soldier, sailor, marine and airman would have to be out of Vietnam by June 30 of next year-ten-anda-half months from today.

Hatfield-McGovern is a blueprint for the first defeat in the history of the United States—and for chaos and Communism for the future of South Vietnam. The Washington Post was generous to call this amendment "reckless." It is worse than that; if adopted by the Senate and passed by the House, this publicized "Amendment to End the War" in Vietnam will go down in the war in Vietnam and destroyed the chances for freedom and peace in Southeast Asia for the balance the century.

Nothing less is at stake. But, if this amendment and any similarly irresponsible proposal which may be offered, can go down in humiliating defeat for its sponsors in the Senate—then this nation will not go down in humiliating defeat on the battlefields of Southeast Asia-I promise you that. Today, I have a simple question. I am here to ask you, as fellow Americans, and fellow veterans can the President of the United States count on your support?

Tragic Blunder'

The charges I have already made here are among the strongest since I took office as Vice-President, But no more dangerous proposal has been presented to the American Congress in those 19 months-or in the sponsors of this amendment do deeply question their wisdom, their judgment and their logic. They are horribly wrong—and it their grave error is enacted into law, generations of Asians and Americans will suffer for their tragic hlunder.

Let us look at the inevitable consequences should Hatfield-McGovern be enacted.

First, the amendment would be a final lethal blow to the Paris peace talks. Any vestige of hope that the enemy will negotiate with Ambassador Bruce at Paris would disappear overnight-for the last incentives for the enemy to talk seriously would be gone. He would have gotten what be came to Paris to get—a fixed final timetable for Americans to get out of South Vietnam. Why should the enemy offer concessions to the United States for something Senators Hatfield and McGovern and their allies will give him free of charge in four months?

Should this amendment become law, and all American military operations in Southeast Asia cease by December 31, the immense burden of this war would fall immediately and totally upon South Vietnam. The government and people there would confront, alone and all at once, the completion of the enormous tasks of creating a stable democratic society, promoting economic and social reform. fighting an internal war against guerrillas and defending their nation from invasion from three

Hatfield and McGovern have in mind opening up Oregon and South Dakota to resettle the refugees? Hardly. And the place for these men and women who believe so deeply in freedom that they will become exiles rather than submit to the Communist yoke is not Oregon or South Dakota-it is South Vietnam

It is clear from their mention of "provision" for refugees that Sens. Hatfield and McGovern have considered that the collapse of South Vietnam will indeed be one consequence of their amendment. But have they considered the consequences of that col-

If South Vietnam collapses, then 285,000 Americans will have suffered and 43,000 will have died for nothing. An American Army, undefeated on the field of battle, will come homs in humiliation because impatient pacifists in the Senate lost the war. What will be the reaction then when the American people wake up to learn that the thousands of lives and billions in taxes over a decade had been spent only to find national humiliation and disaster at the end of the road?

Will they then reward the blind impatient politicians who could not see the war through its final hours-and so snatched, for America, military defeat from the jaws of political victory?

If South Vietnam collapses, then Southeast Asia is gone, Those who do not believe in the Domino Theory, as the President has put it, have not talked to the dommoes. Already, Cambodia is half-occupied by North Viet-namese and Viet Cong. Laos is half-occupied by North Vietnamese and Pathet Lao. Thailand is fighting its own Communist insurgency, aided and encouraged from without. Does any rational man believe these countries-or Malaysia and Singapore at the end of the peninsula-can survive if South as well as North Vietnam should come under the rule of militant Communists?

Have the isolationists in the Senate pondered the full consequences of America's defeat in South Vietnam-and freedom's defeat in Southeast Asia? Looking down the road to the year 2000, we see most Asian nations on the threshold of technological maturity; we see an Asia that contains 60 percent of all bumanity; we see a world which there are ten Asians for every American.

Are the isolationists content to let that Asia go by default to the Communists because they lacked the perseverence to see this

Well, we are not, my fellow Americans and my fellow veterans and the President is not-and together we shall see this war through to an honorable end that will do justice to the sacrifices of all our sons. Have the isolationists considered

When President Nixon took office there were 532,500 American troops in Vietnam. He did not send more troops in-he started bringing the boys home. He pledged in June of last year to bring home 25,000 troops; they have come home. He pledged in September to bring home 35,000 more: they have come home; he pledged in December to bring home 50,000 more; they have come bome. Every promise he has made to the American people about the war in Asia, he has kept. American casualties are a third of what they were in 1963; time is now on the side of the allies, not the side of the enemy; and still they

The President has turned the war over to the South Vietnamese as rapidly as they have become prepared to shoulder the burden. To proceed slower than that is to break faith with the American people. But to move faster than security dictates is to risk the lives of our men and invite a victory for Communism that tens thousands of our lads died to

The Senate sponsors of Hatfield-McGovern cannot win this war: they cannot conclude an honorable peace, but they can lose this war as well as guarantee the ultimate failure of the uneasy peace to follow-if they convince enough of their colleagues to support their mendment.

They argue in the Senate that the Cambodian decision underscores the need to place limits and restrictions upon the Presidentto force upon him a timetable for withdrawal. I do not agree with that assessment. In my view, the President's decision to ente bodia and capture and destroy tons of enemy arms and emminition that would otherwise have been killing American men was an act of courage and the finest hour in the Nixon Presidency. The Cambodian decision does not argue for putting shackles upon this President. It argues eloquently the case that the Senate should leave the President alone to exercise his Constitutional powers as Commander-in-Chief and determine what is necessary to protect the lives of American men. A Lesson

Many of the men in this great organization trace their military service to their country back to World War I. Yet, today, we see abroad in our land and in the halls of Congress the voices of that same shortsighted isolationism that lost the peace after World War I and helped to bring on World War II.

Let us not again forget the les-son that for the United States there in no security in a retreat from the world. Let us not again force an American President to make in deepening despair the kind of statement that Woodrow Wilson made in St. Louis just 10 months after the armistice in France.
"If," he said, "(the Covenant of

A 'Citizens Lobby' That May Succeed

By David S. Broder

WASHINGTON. - If goodwill, betship of existing liberal lobbying good sense and good inten- and political-action groups Home were a guarantee of enccess, then Common Cause, the new mass-membership lobbying group launched this week by John W. Gardner, would be guaranteed a smashing success.

But it takes more than that, as. the former Health, Education and Welfare secretary realizes, and that is why there are many fingers being crossed about the prospects for this venture.

The idea of a "citizens' lobby" is one of the oldest and commonest in town. The Average Citizens, Voters and Taxpayers Association of America, Inc., registered as a lobby last year. So did the Friends of the Earth, the Committee for Community Affairs, the Consumer Federation of America, the American Association of Retired Persons, the Youth Franchise Coalition, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, the National Association of Single Taxpayers and in case anyone was missed—the Rural, Small Town, City Coalition, Inc.

All these groups operate on the premise that there is a definable "public interest," separate from the various private interests, that deserves and needs to be represented in the lobbying process.

Gardner has already had more success than most of the previous "citizens" lobby" organizers in proving that premise workable. The predecessor of Common Cause, has in the past two years been one of the most effective lobby groups on Capitol Hill.

Vital Support

It lent vital support at a crucial moment to the civil rights groups' effort to save the voting rights bill from dilution by the administra-Then it turned around and outdid the administration's own lobbyists in belping the welfare reform bill through the House.

This was a professional job of "inside lobbying" handled by the Action Council's four-man Capitol Hill staff, backed by phone calls and telegrams from the group's small but influential board of directors. Now, seeking the legitimacy and added political muscls that mass-membership can provide, Gardner's group has set out to recruit 100,000 members at $15 apiece under its new name. Common Cause. As a scheme for financing a on the old path, rather than risk lobbying operation, it is nothing their effectiveness on Cartol Hill very exceptional. But Gardner clearly conceives it in more ambitious terms-as a vehicle for the many, many Americans who would like to help rebuild this nation but don't know where to begin." Gardner's sides report that the response to the early round of news stories about the venture has been enthusiastic, but they are anxious to see that the new organization does more than duplicate the mem-

Lowell Beck, top lobbyist for the Action Council, spent a day back in his home town of Peoria. It recently, testing reaction to the Common Cause idea. He came back convinced that, while few people in Peorla would identify themselves as "liberals," B good many would willingly support efforts to end the Vietnam war, reform the weifare system and improve the machinery of Congress and the political parties all of which are among Common Cause's priority

The First Task

Reaching those "non-labeled iberals" in places like Peoria is the first task for Gardner's group, but the second and tougher one may be holding their allegiance for as long as fundamental reform will take.

Most of the successful mass-membership lobby groups stay in bustness by focusing sharply on the epecial interests of their constituents-whether they be higher veterans' pensions, farm supra-or minimum wages. Gardner's gos are in the category of "commergoods," and his target list-ranging from ending the war to provide: annual sessions of state legislatures is so diverse as to risk seriese dilution of the members' entire-ស់នទាា But it is this very fact that makes Gardner's experiment so interesing. In the face of overwhelming evidence that "irritability, hostility, overt antagonism and conflict between groups" is greater than a: any time in our recent history, as be said the other day, Gardner cing to the confidence that "the thing that unite us as a people are min important than the things the divide us."

The issues that most politiciary judge are almost too hot to harde the war, jobs, schools and house, -are in Gardner's lexicon "cc: vergence issues," causes on which broad agreement can be found. In an era when public opinionvariously described as "the slien; majority" or the "emerging majority" or the "real majority"-is being invoked to buttress negative or conservative political strategies, Garaner has the temerity to assert that significant, substantial, sweeping reform is in fact "the com-

It is a bold gamble he has taken and some of his own associates would have preferred to centique on their ability to generate a massmembership constituency.

But if Gardner can prove the constituency exists, be may prove exactly what Sam Brown ... student leader, has said the comtry needs—a movement, not base; on the quicksand of the collect campuses, that can free the natin from the trap of Vietnam and turn its energies to the urgent unsolved problems at home.

An Exciting 'Norma' With Dramatic Flaws At Bregenz Festival

By David Stevens

BREGENZ Austra.-"Norma" would haroly seem to be an Festival, whose limited physical settip and lakeside resort atmosphere have always made it pre-eminently a jocale for comic opera, but the choice of Bellini's bel canto masterpiece was justified by the musical excitement of the first performance last Sunday.

The first requirement for a production of "Norma" is a Norma, and Cristina Deutekom filled the bill with her powerful and flexible voice. Although "Casta Diva" was made uncomfortable by some effortful vocalism and strident high notes, the Dutch soprano settled down to deliver a fluid and idiomatic performance and to dominate the opera's great ensembles in authoritative

She was ably seconded by her principal colleagues. Biancamaria Casoni was a sympathetic Adalgisa and a worthy collaborator with Miss Deutekem in the great "Mira, O Norma" duet, Aldo Bottion was a handsome and stalwart Politone and Paolo Washington sonorous as the high priest Oroveso.

Bartoletti

But the main credit for the excitement and high musical quality of the performance be-longed to Bruno Bartoletti, who drew splendid playing from the Vienna Symphony Orchestra and sharp and vigorous work from the all-important choral forces of the Vienna State

That said, it must also be reported that this production in the very limited confines of the Theater am Kornmarkt was often painful to watch.

often pointless activity of the chorus was not a satisfactory substitute for some meaningful activity by the principal characters, and the metallic, twodimensional scenic effects failed to evoke any relevant at-mosphere or historical period. And the entirely traditional white robes of Norma and Adalgisa quite ungallantly emphasized the matronly appearance of the two ladies.

Bregenz's singular gimmick is the floating stage on Lake Constance, and this year it was devoted for the third time in the festival's 25-year existence to the indestructible "Fleder-Production is everything here, for any attempt at subtlety totally evaporates as it wafts across the water (weather permitting) to 6,000 relaxed (weather permitting) vaca-

The Changing Chinese Theater

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss HONG KONG.—The theater of China has long fascinated eminent playwrights and adventuresome directors in the West. In the high stylization of the Chinese stage, they have seen a means of rescuing modern drams from the oppressive hold that naturalism has exercised on interpretation for almost a century. Claudel, serving in French Embassy at Peking before World War I, wrote glowingly of the Chinese theater. There is an Oriental anti-realism to his subsequent plays. Thornton Wilder, who spent his youth in China, re-cruited the stage manager, scant scenery and symbolic gestures from the Chinese stage for "Our Town."

The German poet Klahund translated the classic Chinese drama, The Chalk Circle," which inspired Brecht to write another version of it. The Russian directors, Meyerhold and Taïrov, employed the Chinese performing arts in several productions as have an army of Occidental choreographers. Meanwhile, the Chinese theater itself has been undergoing some astonishing changes. In the traditional Chinese theater, the stage is bare and every inch is utilized to gain a plasticity of effect. Time and space are dispensed with, a formalized technique of gesture, speech and mime expressing the sharply differentiated personalities of the characters portrayed. All depends on the acting, the singing, the music, the dazzling display of rich costumes and the faces made up in a variety of colors. There is no scenery and few properties, the latter con-sisting of a chair, a table, a fan, a pole, a whip, an umbreila or similar objects sufficient to convey meaning to the audience. The gestures have a grammar of their own. A fan held beside the face denotes that one is standing in the sun; a character holding an umbrella indicates a rainstorm; white paper tossed in the air hy the stage manager announces a snow storm. The closing of a door is signified by

The most celebrated Chi-Dese actor of the past harcentury, Mei Lan-fang, an exquisite artist who visited New York and Moscow with his com-pany in the 1930s, was a female impersonator. The Chinese actor underwent vocal training in these parts, which are sung and chanted in a high falsetto. Confucian morality, however, has relaxed of late. Not only are women permitted to go on the stage, but, on the passenger ship that sails between Rong Kong and Macco, a striptene show serves as entertainment the members of the company boasting of previous engage-ments at the Crazy Hone

Saloon, in Paris. The history of the modern Chinese theater began in 1907 when a group of young Chinese studying in Tokyo formed the Spring Willow Society and staged adaptations of Western plays. West Germans Open Sex Fair In Offenbach OFFENBACH, West Germany, Aug. 20 (AP).—"Intimate 70." West Germany's first sex fair. opened today with a maximum of curiosity and a minimum of protest.

Offenbach's police chief was the first of more than 1,000 visitors who went through the doors in the first hour and a half of the fair at the Civic Auditorium.

Organizers said that the chief made no complaints and no exhibits were altered before the public was admitted.

The fair was inspired by last year's Porno Fair in Copenhagen, but its organizers say the Offenbach version conforms with West German laws that forbid hard-core pornography. The only signs of dissent s the fair opened for a five-day run were a lawyer passing out leaflets challenging the legality of the fair and a protest written over a fair poster which German women don't want a sex exhibition in Offenbach.".

And like their previous movies it brings to those crises an often simplistically psychological view of personality. Ralph Nelson ("Charly," "Lilies of the Fleid," etc.), is "a not-sogreat radical, or at least radicalized, Western, very much of 1970," according to Roger Greenspun. He said he "slightly liked the movie," against his "better judgment," for an inter-polated "hoked-up-chase-cumlove-story involving a private soldier from the pay detail (Peter Strauss) and a very rugged young lady (Candice Bergen) engaged to an officer in the U.S. Army, but tied to the ways and the fate of the Chevenne. with previous distinctions, Miss Bergen has begun developing a film, personality of grace, power and intelligence, and it is good to watch her."

"Dreams of Glass," written, directed and produced by the same Robert Clouse, is less successful than "Darker Than Amber," according to the same critic. "The idea of the film was a perfectly valid one to keep dislogue and cast to a minimum and visually pantomime a cocoon of innocence for two pure-hearted contemporary youngsters before reality yanks the carpet. And the movie is indeed beautiful to look at ... But this is the surface and there unfortunately it stays." The young couple is played by John Denos and Caroline Barrett.

"Losers," a picture directed by Jack Starrett about American motorcyclist supermen pitted against the Viet Cong on enemy terrain, "uses a slam-bang blooddripping massacre of a climax, spearheaded by these hardies, to stress the seeming futility of tha war," Thompson reported, and "falls over fiself along the way in dawdling admiration of the bone-crushing quintet as symbols of rebellion. The cyclists are played by William Smith, Adam Roarke, Houston Savage, Gene Cornelius and Paul Koslo. The director, Jack Starrett, plays a "presidential adviser."

"Barbara," directed hy Wal-ter Burns, adapted by Josef Bush from a novel by Frank Newman, is mostly "given over to copulation." Howard Thompson writes, "with the camera explicitly trailing the young people as they stalk one another over a corner of a sand-dune The players include Jack Rader, Nancy Boyle, Robert McLane and Tequila Mock-

"The fact that they've taken a beating in the market during the past year and a half definitely has led to the increasing number of suits against brokerage houses and corpora-tions," said Stanley L. Kaufman, a New York attorney who has handled many stockholder

People had a way of forgetting when every-thing was going well and all kinds of young sideburned tycoons and genuises were putting corporations together, building empires and conglomerates, making irresponsible statements and, in fact, violating the laws," Mr. Kaufman

The public paid no attention as long as they were making money, but when the bubble burst people said: Here are these laws to protest me, so why not use them?' What has happened in the past year shows the wisdom of the securities laws passed after the great depression," he said. Some legal experts estimate that several hundred stockholder suits currently are active across the country.

Liberal' Rulings

Although the experts say the declining market and recent brokerage-house failures gave impetus to new stockholder litigation, the 'liberal' interpretation of federal securities laws and regulations by the courts is cited by some as an important contributing factor.

In Houston recently, a judge held that the trustee for a company reorganizing under the federal bankruptcy laws has the authority to sue the principals on behalf of all the stock-

Recently, a New York man sued a brokerage house for "churning" his account. Churning, or excessive trading in order to earn commissions, has been illegal for many years but legal sources said recovery in the past usually was limited to the amount of commissions. Horses Were Better

In this case, however, the judge observed that horses would have given the plaintiff a fairer opportunity to realize on his investment," and the man was awarded the full amount of his

A growing number of suits are being brought under a section of the 1934 Federal Securities Act, which provides for forfeiture of profits realized on the "short swing," that is, the purchase and sale of securities by company insiders in a period of less than six months.

Under this section the insider who makes a profit on "in-and-out" transactions in his company'e securities is assumed to be using corporate information that has not been disclosed to the public, and the profit, therefore, belongs to the corporation. New stockholder suits also are being generated by a 1966 addition to the Supreme Court's federal rules of civil procedure which permits class actions, including those bringing suit under the securities law. In a class action, one person can sue on behalf of the whole group in the The laws, however, are not always an investor's answer to a downturn in the market.

Mr. Kaufman said one man called him to report that he was worth $500,000 in stocks last year and now was worth nothing. He wanted to file suit, but his lawyer concluded that the broker had done nothing illegal—he had merely given the investor half a million dollars worth self in this tricky position:

The obvious bid was three clubs, but North experimented with one spade, relying on the fact that South was unlikely to pass in such a situation. It might seem that North-

South would do well to play the no-trump game from the South position, to make sure of two heart tricks if that suit was led but the partnership found that the advantage of receiving a heart lead was illusory.

The heart queen won the first trick, and the declarer had a planning problem. Playing rubber bridge or with team scoring he would have attacked clubs at once to make sure of nine tricks. But as overtricks were important, he made the slightly risky play of leading to the diamond queen to unblock.

verse pleasure to anyone living in New York, an urban ruin ravaged by power dimonts, sub-way fires and polinted, eye-stinging air. Inhabiting an unworkable future, I find it a psychic elixir to move grate-fully into the cool half-light of the distant past.

None of these volumes have any obvious "relevance" to the problems that beset us. Thank god. We live too intensely with headlines. We need antidotes to the curse of recentless topicality, if only to preserve that most threatened of qualities, a sense of perspective.

Geoffrey Bibby, for example, has managed to write about his experiences in the Middle East without ever directly dealing with the Arab-Israeli conflict. How refreshing to read a book about the region by someone who is not trying to grind a plowshare into an axe!

For 15 years, Bibby has been digging in terrain around the Persian Gulf neither for oil nor missile sites, but for traces of a lost civilization—the land of Dilmun, once a major power known and feared by the Sumerians and Babylonians.

On the island of Bahrein, an oil-blessed sheikhdom in the gulf. Bibby appears to have found a civilization whose very memory was lost for 3,000 years. The temples, pottery and graves of Dilmun have come to light, evoking a mercantile kingdom that flourished in the third millennium before Christ.

:The author has also directed pioneering excavations in Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, where his finds suggest that other little known civilizations once flowered in what is now a desolate wasteland.

Bibby is an Englishman who is presently director of Oriental antiquities at the Prehistorio Museum of Aarhus, Denmark He is a fluent writer, who won a name for himself with his fine survey of European prehistory, "The Testimony of the Spade." Part of the merit of his new book is that it blends the appeal of a travelogue and detective story with that of an anthoritative scientific report.

He thus interweaves an en-gains account of bringing a rare fretic falcon as a gift to the shelkh of Bahrein with a description of the meticulous techniques of modern excava-tion, infusing life into the dust. Bibby's most intriguing conjecture concerns the Sumerian of written stories, famous for its account of the Flood. In this ancient epic, Dilmun is called a holy land and Bahrein was apparently the place in which Gilgamesh—the first heroof literature-sought "the flower of mmortality."

In Bibby's pages, the name of P. V. Glob—known to all his colleagues simply as "P. V." recurs again, and again. In "The Bog People" (IHT, Oct. 1, 1969), this eminent Danish

Vice-King Gummer's first act was to seek an audience with the king. Henry refused to see him. Tim too busy getting divorces to have time for Vice-Kings." he told Wolsey. or Cromwell, or Cranmer, or perhaps his press secretary. "Tell him to go make some fund-raising apeeches and leave me alooe."

One morning King Henry picked up his copy of "Ye Times of Loudon" and choked on his coffee. There in huge type was a headline that said: 'Vice-King Sensation!" and unoer it a smaller headline say-"Ye Pope n Bum: Gum-

"If anybody in ye Tudor administration is going to useth vile language against ye Pope. I will be ye man to do it." Henry roared, "Off with the vice-royal head!"

Portunately for his vicemajesty, a royal adviser quickly noted that abusing the pope might be good politics, particularly if Henry did not have to do the abusing. Henry fumed. Hc was B man who liked to do the abusing. It augered him to see a flunkey depriving him of sport, but he agreed to leave Gummer's head attached in the cause of politics.

This was all reported in "Ye Times of London," naturally, Its cartoonist caricatured Gummer as a beagle and Henry as his master with a muzzle in his hand. Next day Gummer went to Liverpool and attacked "Ye Times" before an audience of wildly enthusiaatic earla at a £100-a-plate steak-and-kidneypie dinner.

Next day's "Ye Times" reported that Gummer had called Str Thomas More "a sissy." after the speech, Reporters asked why he dropped a passage from his prepared text that called for separating Sir Thomas from English society "like a bao apole." Had he heen "muzzled" by the king? "Muzzled?" Gummer asked incredulously.

"The king wouldn't muzzle

It was his fatal error of course. When Henry read it, he could not be stayed in his decision, "Historle," lie told Gummer before sending him to the Tower. "would justly deem that king unkingly who could oot abuse popes for himself, raise pounds from earls without steak-and-kldney-pie dinners nor muzzle Gummer T.

"Ye Vice-Kingship." Henry observed after the execution, "is a sillie superfluity," and abolished it.

View of the city of Suzdal in the region of Vladimir.

Old Russia Lives Inside the Soviet Union

By Anthony Astrachan

VLADIMIR. U.S.S.R. (WP). - Old Russia does survive amld the modernizing effort of today's Soviet

A guide from Intourist, the organization that alternately helps and smothers foreign visitors, points out a fortress gate and two magnificent cathedrals surviving from the 12th century, when Vladimir was the capital of the leading principality of Kievan Russla.

Walking to them, you pass a 17thcentury church that now houses B planetarium and an Agitpunkt—a distribution center for party exhortations. The cathedrals, stop Vladimir Hill, look out over factory chimneys along the Klyazma River, A trolleybus swings around the white stone tower known as the Golden Gate (It once held R gate intended to be covered with gilded copper: and travels out Lenin Avenue, s newly built street of the same instantshoddy appartment buildings that scar every Soviet city, with or without history.

The carvings on the outside wall of the cathedral of St. Dmitri have a beauty. a dynamism, a humor that disappeared from Russian art centuries hefore socialist realism palsied the hand of official Soviet painting. The Orthodox church later banned outside decoration to encourage more effort on the icons inside churches.

Space can give a clearer idea of old Russla thao buildings do to a visitor who drives from Vladimlr to the little. town of Suzdal, ouce its predecessor as a Russian capital but now little more than a museum-village.

It is easy to understand how the first Russians wanted to settle here-about 90 miles east and north of Moscow-after leaving behind the land of bogs, marshes and fir and birch forest that was their earlier home. First the Klyazma became a trade route between the northwest and the east and south vis the Volga and the Oka Rivers. Then Suzdal, Vladimir and neighboring Rostov became political Suzdal itself has at least eight cathedrals and 38 churches, the guide says -one of them active, for believers. The monastery of the Deposition of the Robe of the Virgin is full of charming examples of the asymmetrical decoration that was a Suzdal characteristic.

Suzdal's Pokrovsky (Intercession) Monastery was the place where tsars banished and then buried their unwanted women-Ivan the Terrible's fifth wife, Boris Godunov's daughter, Peter the Great's first wife.

The guide's commentary throughout the visit emphasizes the role of Vladimir's princes in unifying and enlarging old Russia, which Soviet historians regard as progressive. In fact, the princes fought their brother princes in other parts of Russia for centuries. But their desire to expand their domains and their ability to consolidate their power while paying tribute to the Tstar overlords did contribute to the later unification of Russia under Ivan the Terrible.

One Vladimir prince founded Moscow and another was Alexander Nevsky, who defeated the Germans and the Swedes and whose descendants ruled Muscovy for centuries. A trlangular obelisk was built to cele-hrate Vladimir's 800th birthday. In the park that starts at the monument and borders the cathedrals, a 20thcentury dance drew nearly 1,000 people.

home to the old buildings with inadequate space, ventilation and sewage that line the main streets of downtown Viadunir. Their facades give it character, however.

The problem is that many of the old huildings house only a few people. Both in out-of-pocket cost and in ultimate housing economics it is more expensive to remodel them than to destroy and rehuild.

Far to the northwest, on the island of Kizhi in Lake Nega in Karelia old Russia is preserved without these problems: Nobody lives there execept the staff of the museum-village and the restorers They care for wooden huildings that date hack in one case to the 14th-century monk who brought Christianity to the area. There are two magnificent 18th-century churches which have a fairy-tale quality. They were built without nails, without moss or mortar between logs tight against the wind hecause the logs are notched to fit together—with oniondome cupolas made entirely from aspen shingles.

The curved shingles are not milled or even bent. They are carved with axe and chisel from single blocks of wood in the old style. The restorers-many of them from the old families of the part-Finnish people of the region, with skills passed down from father to son-have carved 60,000 shingles. They cover the 22 cupolas of the Preobrazhensky Church, huilt for summer use, and the ten cupolas of the Pokrovsky (Intercession) Church, built for winter use. The visitor also thinks of the contrast hetween the old wooden buildings, which keep out rain and snow today as they have for centuries, and modern Soviet spartment houses whose tenants write to the newspapers to complain of leaks in buildings only a few years old. Museum director Vilho Niemi does not speak of such things, but of the work being done at research institutes on the problems he faces: Preserving the wood chemically for the future and straightening some walls that lean without making the whole building fall in: The visitor hopes they succeed so future generations can be enchanted in their

PEOPLE:

Britain's Princess Margaret is 40 years old today. The princess, her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, and their two children will spend the day at the royal family's gray granite Victorian castle in Balmoral, Scotland. They will be joined by Queen Elizabeth, the queen mother and other members of. the royal family.

At 40, the UPI reports, Princess Margarct is growing plump and a budding double chin is evident. She has been described in the British press as "a comfortably huilt matron."

Her once-keen interest in nightclnbbing and champagne suppers at posh restaurants has flagged but she regularly stiends private parties given hy trendy friends, as well as the tiring round of official appearances. In a controversial book on the royal family by British journalist Andrew Duncan. Margaret is quoted: 'I think everybody has the right to stick up for themselves. My friends used to tease me and say I was wearing my 'acid drop' expression. That doesn't happen a lot now. I'm much nicer in my old age."

Her 10-year marriage to Lord Snowdon, a motorcycleriding photographer, remains intact despite a regular spate of rumors that divorce is imminent.

A former ride estimates that Eddie Fisher made more than $700,000 annually in his peak years. Now the belting baritone has filed a bankruptcy petition in Puerto Rico. What happened? Longtime Fisher watchers and associates (that's what the AP's Gene Handsaker wrote: speculate: "I don't think he's kept his repertoire as up to date as Sinatra does. Or Andy Williams, who has kept developing with the times."

"The public tired of him. He was the former Mr. Elirabeth Taylor too long." "The pressure of debt kept him from caring about how good he can be. The bankruptcy may help him put his mind to his career again," . In the petition the 42-yearold singer listed debts of nearly $1 million - against assets of $40,000. The debt total $916,300 includes $41,069 in U.S. taxes, $43,327 to the State of California, $58,000 to Paramount Pictures, $34,000 to the Bank of America and $40,980 to a jeweler.

Fisher reached a popularity and money peak in the first half of the 1950s. For RCA-Victor he recorded 23 straight hits, including the million-plus Princess Margaret Comes of an Age sellers "Any Time." "Im Waik-ing Behind You," "Oh, Mein Papa" and "I Need You Nov." For five years he had his own television shows. He starred in two movies—"Bundle of Joy." with Debbie Reynolds, when she was his wife, and "Bu!terfield 8" with Elizabeth Tay. lor, while married to her. His third wife, actress Connie Stevens, divorced him in June, 1969. They had two daughters.

Dividends from a $400 million trust fund set up by J. Pani Getty's mother are not going to be split among the father and his sons, a superior court-judge ruled Wednesday in San Francisco. Gordon Peter Gelty. 36, brought the suit in 1966, contending the $111 million in dividends should be distributed to his father, himself and his three brothers.

The father successfully replied that the fund was organied in 1934 by his mother, Sarah. so that his sons "had to wark. She was not interested in tiring the children income but to zetecting the business.". July Charles S. Peery agreed, same the "intention of the truster. ascertainable."
